

Periauger Update May 2011

Due to Mother Nature, maintenance got underway a little late this year. The weather was too cold for volunteers to work, and besides the epoxy would not cure in the cold temperatures. Anyway, as you can see my rotted gunwale is being replaced with white oak by Jim Colyer and Jerry Nordmeier. There are a few other items that also need to be taken care of, but they are minor compared to replacement of my gunwale.

After maintenance is complete, my good friend Hutch will tow me on Buddy to Edenton to participate in the Edenton Music and Water Festival on June 18th. This is always a fun event and draws many visitors; some will board for a sail in Edenton Bay, others will observe and learn about me from one of the shore based interpreters.

Other events on my schedule are: Hertford's July 4th celebrations at Missing Mill Park on July 3rd; and Hertford's Indian Summer Festival on September 10th. I take guests sailing at both of these events, so mark your calendars and come out for a sail.

Your friend,
Miss P
